

PICNIC

As sung by The McGuire Sisters

On a picnic morning, without a warning,
I looked at you and somehow I knew.

On a day for singing, my heart went winging,
A picnic grove was our rendezvous.

You and I in the sunshine.
We strolled the fields and farms.
At the last light of evening, I held you in my arms.

Now when days grow stormy and lonely for me,
I just recall picnic time with you.

Now when days grow stormy and lonely for me,
I just recall picnic time with you.

"Theme from Picnic," often referred to simply as "Picnic," originated in the 1955 movie Picnic, starring Kim Novak and William Holden. The music was written by George Duning, with lyrics by lyricist Steve Allen.

The most popular versions of the song in 1956 were instrumental medleys of the song with "Moonglow". The vocal recording by The McGuire Sisters peaked at #13 on the Top 100. Andy Williams also released a version of the song in 1956.
